NOTIFICATION - ACH Information + Setup

Providing incorrect account information will result in a rejected ACH. The items will not post to the account.

On payday, when your paycheck is automatically deposited, it is called an ACH deposit. When you pay a bill online or set your mortgage or car loan to automatically pay on a particular day, that is an ACH payment.

ACH (Automated Clearing House Network) can be known by many names; Direct Deposit, direct pay or electronic check, ACH services handle everything from Social Security and salaries to mortgage, credit card payments and more.

There are TWO things you will need when setting up an incoming or outgoing ACH transaction with MembersFirst CT FCU (MFCTFCU): 1. Our routing number (211177748) 2. Account Number (Checking or Savings)

If you want the transaction to post to your primary savings account, use your full member number with suffix (00), and select "Savings" as the type of account on the ACH form you are filling out. For example, if your member number is 999999-6 you would use 999999600 for your primary savings account.

If your ACH transaction is a deposit or withdrawal from your checking account, you MUST use the MICR (magnetic ink character recognition) code that is the middle section of numbers located at the bottom of your printed check.

This number is assigned to your individual checking account. You will also want to select "Checking" as the type of account on the ACH form you are filling out. If you do not have any checks for this checking account, contact the credit union for the correct checking account number to submit. As always if there is any concern or question, please feel free to contact us at (203) 237-6424 or by email at info@membersfirstctfcu.com
